

Summer Learning Initiative Morgan Stanley Summer Teaching Fellows

SUMMER TEACHING FELLOWSHIP

An exciting internship to get hands-on teaching experience and exposure to non-profits, with training and networking opportunities

Do you have a commitment to education and service in underserved communities? Are you interested in gaining hands-on experience in an educational setting? Join a select group of college students and work in New York City summer programs this summer. You will be placed as a trained educator in urban summer camps in one of the five boroughs in NYC to provide academic and enrichment activities to youth in kindergarten through High School.

After four years in a pandemic, the gaps for under-resourced communities are widening. After-school programs help fill these gaps by providing a supportive environment and a boost in academic assistance. This internship provides the needed support to afterschool programs and an opportunity to help narrow the gap.

Morgan Stanley Summer Teaching Fellows will join a network of educators, leaders in the field, and other professionals committed to expanding opportunities for youth. As a Summer Teaching Fellow, you will receive training in experiential education curriculum, have opportunities to meet and train with leading city community educators, expand your professional network, and help to manage and participate in PASE's city-wide conference. Summer Teaching Fellows are part of a citywide initiative to strengthen the educational opportunities and learning experiences for low-income youth during the summer.

About PASE

The Partnership for After School Education (PASE) is a child-focused organization that promotes and supports quality afterschool programs, particularly those serving young people from underserved communities. We do so by working with the adults in children's lives, ensuring they are prepared, trained, and capable of providing high-quality services.

For 30 years, PASE has helped the dedicated individuals who work in afterschool programs gain and develop the skills they need to provide high-quality, content-rich programmatic experiences to youth in out-of-school time, building a stronger and more resilient afterschool field. As a network leader, PASE collaborates with hundreds of community-based organizations, corporate partners, and higher education, governmental, and philanthropic institutions. Through these partnerships, PASE is able to provide the more than 1,600 community-based organizations in our network with the support they need to provide the 500,000 young people in New York City's afterschool programs with the opportunities they deserve.

Summer Learning Initiative Morgan Stanley Summer Teaching Fellows

Our Fellows

Since its inception, we have had over 250 Summer Teaching Fellows from 94 different colleges all around the country. After completing the program, some of the fellows have gone on to engage in:

- Fulbright Student Program
- Peace Corps
- Teach for America
- AmeriCorps
- NYC Teaching Fellows
- Advanced Degrees

Fellowship Details

The program will start with a week long training to prepare students for their work in the field. Additionally, fellows will meet every Friday throughout the program for supervision, peer sharing, and presentations from guest speakers in the non-profit, education and business fields. Fellows will have an additional opportunity to network with PASE staff, board, community-based organization's management, representatives from Morgan Stanley, our funder, and others with a vested interest in great outcomes for young people.

Time Commitment: June 10 thru August 13, 2024; up to 30 hours/week (first 2 weeks are in training)

Rate: $16/hour

Ideal candidates are:

- Students with prior experience working with youth (summer camps, schools, tutoring, afterschool, etc.)
- Strong facilitators, with experience working with small and large groups and familiarity with teaching content (can range from reading, writing, STEM, arts, or sports)
- Strong communicators with good interpersonal and group work skills
- Interested in education, non-profits, and working with NYC youth
- Current college students (fellowship is open to rising sophomores, juniors, and seniors)
- Students from the New York City area, who represent the diversity of the afterschool field, and who demonstrate a financial need for a paid internship are strongly encouraged to apply.

Adhering to NYC regulations, all interns will need to be fully vaccinated.
